

Lovest that the news will have a rather unfavorable impression on the money market. But we often find hardly time to be developed.

The Cincinnati Gazette gives the following account of the destruction of several houses in that city engaged in a species of bootlegging that would do credit to some of our southern neighbors:

The dealers of McLaughlin, Morris & Co. confess to us that their assets will not pay over twenty cents on the dollar.

In connection with this failure we wish to call a few remarks. During the last five or six years, there have been some four or five houses engaged in the grocery business in this city, the one not having sufficient capital to go on. They were all failures. This would be the first place, by some means or other, succeed in building up a credit for themselves in the eastern cities, particularly Baltimore and New York, and upon this credit would purchase five or fifteen hundred cases of coffee at a time. This market is so large that it can be sold out in a few days at small profit, as it has been during the last few years, at a positive loss; with the funds thus obtained, they would go to New Orleans in the fall, and purchase sugar, molasses, and perhaps coffee, bring it up to New York on the strength of their name. In the winter would make a profit when a new purchase would be made and the quantity increased, and the funds used to do business on in various ways.

While the trade in sugar and molasses was a paying one, the price of coffee seemed destined to continue to rise, so it finally ruined the coffee dealers in this city, as these coffee gentlemen had to sell, and in order to do so would undersell, and the consequence was that all dealers who wanted to do a fair and profitable business became disgusted with it. During the two years the sugar and molasses have also been unprofitable, which so cramped and embarrassed the coffee dealers that they have failed one after another, and now the last one is gone.

The reason in which this name has been placed has been well known here for some years, as the foolishness, not to say stupidity, with which the coffee dealers manifested in thus selling their goods to such men, and fostering such an unusual and dangerous business, has been the subject of much comment during the last year or two. The result, however, is that they have again been unprofitable, which so cramped and embarrassed the coffee dealers that they have failed one after another, and now the last one is gone.

We know of no single rich case of this kind; but fearing that the same would occur, we do hope and trust we receive from further comment. To do justice to this line of speculation, as far as our city is concerned a loss, has come to a close—never more to be revived in any shape to injure the character of our business community, or disgrace "the trade of our city." There is no room for such a line of business, and if Mr. A. R. and C. are good, of their brother merchants, even in confidence, is a poor way of finding out the true state of the case. Few men, except the evidence is pretty clear—say, obvious—will express themselves fully when interrogated on such a subject. To our mind, the right course is to let the public know that the man who becomes personally acquainted with the manner in which it does business; and never to trust a man who does business carelessly and lives extravagantly, and never to sell a man more goods than what is consummated with the extent of his general business.

The same old statement exhibits the quantity and value of articles other than foreign dry goods, imported into this district during the week ending and including Friday, July 28, 1854—
